Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm writing to apply for the Client Partner role on Thoughtworks' Public Sector, Healthcare & Life Sciences team in Singapore. Over the past 20+ years I've built my career at the intersection of consultative selling and Singapore's public sector — owning strategic accounts across MTI, MAS, GovTech, IMDA, Synapse, and JTC — and more recently extended that into healthcare and life sciences through work with Synapse, Tan Tock Seng Hospital's Innovation Lab, Zuellig Pharma, and GC Dental Group. I'd like to bring that relationship depth and full sales-cycle ownership to Thoughtworks.

What draws me to this role specifically is the nature of what Thoughtworks sells: engineering delivery, not just a platform or a license. That's familiar territory — at Capgemini and Logica earlier in my career, and more recently at VISEO, I sold and owned consulting and managed-services engagements end-to-end, from formalised tendering through delivery governance. At VISEO, I achieved 200–400% of annual quota across three consecutive years, closing a $5.6M bespoke solutions engagement with senior government stakeholders and delivering $15–20M+ in aggregate portfolio value annually across public sector, commercial, and enterprise segments. I've paired that with product and platform selling at Workato and ARM, so I understand both motions and know when a client needs one over the other.

I've also spent this career building the kind of senior government relationships that take years to earn and can't be a shortcut. Navigating formal tendering, translating policy priorities into deployable initiatives, and staying the trusted advisor through pilot-to-production cycles — this is the work I know well, and it's exactly what a Client Partner needs to do to open doors and grow accounts inside Singapore's public sector.

I'd welcome the chance to discuss how this experience translates into building Thoughtworks' PH&LS portfolio in Singapore. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Lee Gee Sin
